INGREDIENT SPOTLIGHT

CAFFEINE ANHYDROUS

Move over morning cuppa, we're spilling the beans on why caffeine is the real MVP in your skincare routine – because your skin deserves a double shot of radiance!

INGREDIENT NAME	INCI NAME	INGREDIENT TYPE	APPEARANCE	DENSITY	SOURCE
Caffeine Anhydrous	Caffeine	Active	White Powder	1.23 g/ml	Coffee Plants (Seeds & Leaves)

What is Caffeine?

It isn't just your morning pick-me-up, it is a versatile skincare ingredient that is ever-increasing in popularity. Classified as an active ingredient, it is used in formulations to target dark spots and blemishes on the face and under the eyes. Like coffee, it is renowned for being fast-acting, showing noticeable results within no time! Caffeine is naturally derived from coffee plants after harvesting and then dehydrated to produce a fine white powder.

What Does It Do?

Some Key Benefits

Vasoconstrictor: Stimulates the constriction of blood vessels to make the skin tighter and reduce puffiness.

Skin-Brightener: Improves skin tone and greatly reduces blemishes and dark circles.

Antioxidant: Protects the topical layer of skin by defending it against harmful free radicals.

Caffeine Can Also...

- Reduce fine lines and wrinkles
- Promote collagen production
- Reduce cellulite
- Help repair sunburnt and UV-damaged skin
- Promote anti-aging and skin-firming
